Two Fires Rage Out Of Control

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 29.—(UP)—Two major fires, the worst in 30 years, burned out of control through the Angeles National Forest today as fire fighters battled to save the world's second largest telescope and other precious scientific equipment.

Already, almost 15,000 acres of timber were destroyed. High winds drove fires larger than 300 yards of the Mt. Wilson Observatory, which houses a 100-in telescope and other valuable equipment. A dozen scientists and other personnel awaited possible orders to evacuate the site.

Their wives and children already had left. However, the U. S. Forestry Service said the situation at Mt. Wilson was "improving" though still "serious."

Firefighting teams manned 14 pumps near the observatory summit to beat down the flames if they crackle closer. Reinforcements in the form of 200 Indian forest fire experts were being flown here from Arizona and New Mexico.

More than 1,000 firefighters were maintaining the lines at both blazes which have caused evacuation of more than 2,000 persons from homes and summer cabins.

ACTS TO AVERT STRIKE AGAINST U. S. RAILROADS

PRESIDENT SETS UP SPECIAL EMERGENCY MEDICATION BOARD

AUGUSTA, Ga., Dec. 29.—(UP)—President Eisenhower today set up a special emergency board in an effort to stave off a threatened strike of more than a million non-operating employees against the nation's railroads.

The Chief Executive put aside briefly the laborious task of preparing speeches and messages to Congress and the public to sign an executive order aimed at halting, or at least delaying, a threatened work stoppage by the 15 nonoperating railroad unions AFL.

The unions have voted to strike in a dispute over operating rules changes but set no date for the walkout.

In his executive order today, the President said the unsettled argument "in the judgment of the National Mediation Board threatens substantially to interrupt interstate commerce to a degree such as to deprive the country of essential transportation services."

Mr. Eisenhower provided in his order for a three-man board but did not name the members. The appointments were expected to be made shortly.

The board will report back to the President in 30 days with recommendations on how best to settle the dispute which could tie up American rail transportation if the non-operating unions struck.

The winter White House here said about 150 railroads were involved in the disagreement. Meanwhile, the President poured over a set of speeches and messages on which he based a hope for bipartisan cooperation from the Democrats on foreign policy and national defense.

RHEE URGES UN TO WAGE ALL-OUT FIGHT

SOUTH KOREAN PRESIDENT DEMANDS END TO NEGOTIATIONS

SEOUL, Korea, Dec. 29.—(UP)—President Syngman Rhee called upon the United Nations today to end negotiations with the Communists and join South Korea in an all-out battle to crush Communist forces.

Rhee said this was the only way the United Nations could prevent new aggression and bring lasting peace to the world.

The President also promised North Koreans that South Korea will "come to your rescue" as soon as possible.

The President in a New Year's message, urged "every freedom loving individual in the north to join with us in the great fight for this common cause."

There was no immediate reaction among South Korea's allies to Rhee's statement which probably will be broadcast to North Korea.

Although Rhee has agreed with the United States to observe the Korean armistice, he has reserved the right to take unilateral action if the peninsula has not been unified by Jan. 27.

U. S. Asst. Secretary of State Walter S. Robertson said Rhee has kept all his promises and he believed the aged President would continue to cooperate with the Allies.

Rhee, who recently conferred in Taipei, Formosa, with Nationalist Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek, said Chinese on the mainland soon would revolt against the Communist regime of Dictator Mao Tse-Tung.

"We know, too, that the Chinese millions will not remain content for long behind the Iron Curtain," Rhee said. "Very soon they will rise with their government in Formosa to start the battle against enslavement."

Chiang said in a Christmas message that he hoped to free Chinese on the mainland in 1954, the "year of decision."

Turning to the North Koreans, Rhee expressed regret at his inability to drive north before now and told them Koreans must fight for unification even if it meant loss of their lives and property.

State Airplane Mishaps Claim 14

INDIANAPOLIS, Dec. 29.—(INS)—The Aeronautics Commission of Indiana reported today that 14 persons have died in airplanes in this state since last March.

There have been 75 accidents, of which 10 resulted in fatalities. Causes included:

Failure to recognize a stall and recover from it, or stalling at critical times and altitudes, 25 per cent of these 75 accidents.

Striking other objects, on or near the ground, 20 per cent. Errors in judgment, 25 per cent. This category included almost everything from attempted flight in marginal weather to propping an airplane with no one at the controls.

Mechanical failure, reckless flying, downwind take-off and landing, inexperience and running out of fuel, 18 per cent.

Precautionary landings attempted at locations other than airports, 12 per cent. The report added:

"Considering the number of aircraft operated in Indiana during this time period involved—and the resulting number of hours and miles flown—this is still a very impressive safety record. However, the record is not as good as that posted in 1952. So let us resolve to be more safety conscious in 1954."

President Has Busy Schedule

WASHINGTON, Dec. 29.—(UP)—President Eisenhower has assigned himself a fat part in the role he likes best for the opening of the new session of Congress. He'll be talking and acting next week more as President of the United States than as leader of the Republican Party.

But that is good politics, even though the President likes it, and his party leaders in Congress are more apt to applaud than to complain. They and he know the chips are down for the GOP in the second session of the 83rd Congress which convenes at noon, Wednesday, Jan. 6th.

Mr. Eisenhower either wins popular support for his second session foreign and domestic program or the prospect of Republican election victories in 1954 and 1956 fades away.

Mr. Eisenhower sought to put a partisan foundation under his program in a series of mid-December conferences with Republican legislative leaders. He will have Democratic and Republican leaders in for bi-partisan program discussion on Jan. 1, the day before the new session convenes. That is merely a courtesy gesture to the Democrats since the program by then will be fixed in print and ready for presentation to Congress. But it is a gesture with crowd appeal.

Mr. Eisenhower's major petition at the beginning of the new session will be to the public, a strategy which was developed to its greatest effectiveness by Franklin D. Roosevelt. The President has scheduled a final all-Republican White House huddle for 8:30 a. m. EST Jan. 4. Thereafter he will appear from day to day and well into the following week as the spokesman of all the people.

First appearance in that role will be on the evening of Jan. 4 in a TV-radio report such as FDR used to call a fireside chat. The following day he will be meeting with the Republican and Democratic legislative leaders, and what could be less partisan than that, or more appropriate for a president?

Congress will have the headlines on Jan. 6 when it meets briefly and lets the President know it is ready to hear any communication he may care to make.

Mr. Eisenhower will respond to that invitation the following day with his message on the State of the Union which is designed to reach as far beyond the boundaries of partisan politics as it is possible to go without causing trouble among the home team.

MORE ARGUMENTS

Despite strong United States opposition, it's almost a foregone conclusion that the prisoner issue will be decided more by the United Nations before the prisoners finally set free.

Demos Comment On Ike's Invite
WASHINGTON, Dec. 29. (UP)—Congressional Democrats said today their invitation to a White House conference on the administration's legislative program came a little late to have any real meaning.

They agreed it was a courteous "gesture" for President Eisenhower to ask Democratic and Republican leaders in for bi-partisan talks on foreign policy and national defense next Tuesday. But they pointed out that Mr. Eisenhower's program, to be outlined to Congress in his State of the Union message Jan. 7, almost certainly will be cut and dried by that time.

Sen. Lester C. Hunt, D-Wyo., predicted that the Jan. 5 meeting, announced by White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty Monday, will have little or no practical effect on the president's program or the attitude toward it.

Sen. Estes Kefauver said it was gratifying "this gesture toward ship in foreign affairs is absolutely essential to maintain a bi-partisan approach." But he added the program has not been permanently set that the opportunity for a Democratic suggestion.

for kidnapping an Indiana baby. Mrs. Tommie Dene Doughty pleaded guilty Monday to kidnapping 5-month-old Richard Lee Stammer at Evansville, Ind., and carrying him to Bokchito, Okla., where she was captured five days later.

Federal Judge Eugene Rice pronounced sentence and said the girl would be eligible for parole after serving one-third of the sentence providing she makes a good record behind bars.

U. S. Dist. Atty. Frank D. McSherry had recommended a 20-25 year sentence. He declared the defendant deserved "severe punishment" in view of the anxiety she had caused the child's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Stammer, Evansville.

Mrs. Doughty's court-appointed lawyer, Cleon A. Summers, asked for a suspended sentence and probation.

Mrs. Doughty was sentenced under the Lindbergh Kidnaping Act which provides a maximum sentence of life imprisonment for interstate kidnapers who do not harm their victims.

The child was uninjured when found Nov. 8 with Mrs. Doughty at her parents' home following the kidnapping and a flight across four states.

Mr. Dale led the king of hearts and after a little thought Mr. Muzzy played low from his hand and discarded a club from the board.

On came the queen of hearts. Mr. Muzzy hesitated longer this time but finally ducked again and discarded another club from his hand.

Plays Deuce

When the jack of hearts followed, Mr. Muzzy apparently couldn't stand it any longer. He played the deuce of spades from the board and won with the ace of hearts.

He now had no chance for nine tricks because he had to play at least one club, or the finesse of the queen of spades had to work. At trick four he led the jack of clubs, intending to abandon the suit immediately if the opponent holding the ace of clubs ducked.

But Mr. Abel stepped right in with that card and, since he had a heart left, Mr. Dale was enabled to cash two more winners in that suit.

"All you had to do," said Mr. Meek plaintively, "was to hold up on the hearts until Abel was out of the suit."

Stops Too Soon
"Well, I held up twice," Mr. Muzzy replied.

"I guess that answers YOU, Meek," said Mr. Abel, smiling. "But holding up the third time was the key play," continued Mr. Meek. "Unless you did that, you may as well have won the first heart trick."

"You're fastening your time, Meek," advised Mr. Abel. "Muzzy's using the same logic he used on me the other day. He had a dead squeeze on his right hand opponent but he let him off the hook. I asked him why and he said 'Well, what more could I do—I led out all my trumps but one.'"

Drives Auto On Tracks; Fined $120

PERU, Ind., Dec. 29. —(UP)—Charles Windoffer, 59, Somerset, Ind., was $120 poorer today because he challenged a railroad engineer over a question of right of way.

Windoffer was arrested Saturday night by Miami County Sheriff J. M. Behle who said the defendant drove his auto about half a mile up a Baltimore and Ohio railroad track and was beating the engineer for not dimming the train's headlight.

Behle said Windoffer apparently drove up the tracks thinking he had turned onto a county road leading to his home. He said Windoffer bounced up the line until he came upon the train, which was stopped for a red warning light the auto had tripped on its journey.

The engineer sent another crewman to call the sheriff and after Windoffer was removed, had to wait for a wrecker to remove the car before resuming his journey two hours behind schedule.

Windoffer paid the $120 in fines and costs in city court here Monday on charges of drunk driving and public intoxication.

LOOKING... ...AT LIFE

By Erich Brandeis

If I had only known about this in time, I could have given you a wonderful suggestion for the Christmas gift for your man.

It's too late for that now—but you can still get it for him in time for income tax, and you know what you have to go through with your husband—or any man as far as that's concerned—around March 15th.

In connection with Wayne University, the Burroughs Adding Machine people have just brought out a gadget that will figure your income tax, no matter how complicated, in 45 seconds.

Oh, by the way, I forgot to tell you the price. The machine costs $500,000. But I understand they are thinking of reducing it to $499,999.98, to interest the women buyers.

Talking about women, did you read that Premier Mohammed Naguib of Egypt, land of the late King Marouk, has placed a ban on public flirting with them? It makes no difference whether the woman makes a complaint or not.

Any man caught flirting publicly for the first time will be jailed for seven days. For the second time he will have to serve six months. The dispatch does not say what the punishment for the third offense is to be. Probably hanging.

Premier Naguib accompanied his ban with a solemn statement about the sanctity of womanhood and what a terrible crime it is to violate it.

It's a good thing we haven't any laws like that in our country. Half our male population in the late teens, early twenties and incipient sixties would be in jail.

And here is a tip to that great mass of women who are too fat and therefore wonder, perhaps, why they are not being whistled at or flirted with.

The tip comes from a Harvard professor, Frederick J. Stone, and "If it comes out of Harvard it's got to be good," to paraphrase a TV announcer.

What's causing more obesity than anything else, says the professor, is SNACKS.

And one of the great causes of snack-nibbling is television. So the professor recommends that if you must eat snacks while looking at TV—or at any time between or after meals—be sure to take the same amount of calories out of your regular meals.

For instance, if you must eat a snack, eat something that would ordinarily be on your regular breakfast, lunch or dinner menu. In other words, if you feel like having mashed potatoes for a snack while watching television, don't have mashed potatoes for breakfast that day.

The professor also says that those appetizing commercials picturing "lasty eats and drinks" make people want snacks, and thus have much to do with the fattening up of our population. In my opinion, it's just the opposite. If I weigh myself and see that I am getting too fat, all I have to do is to look at or listen to commercials for a day or two.

That's bound to spoil my appetite and to reduce me to normal in short order. Try it for a reducing cure.

UNUSUAL PET

FRANKLIN, Ind., Dec. 28.—(INS)—A raccoon that likes to drink pop and ride in cars is the latest of a long list of unusual pets 12-year-old David Harrison has owned at one time or another.

Before the arrival of Joey the raccoon, David used to entertain his mother's visitors with a two-foot-long alligator and later a rather large green snake.

His father, William Harrison, said the boy just missed getting a baby mountain lion and a small bear.

In addition to an endless curiosity, an ability to open drawers and rummage and a willingness to eat anything, Joey boasts of once having hitchhiked home in a boat.

The Harrisons left the pet in the summer cabin near Amity. The 'coon got out of the cabin and several Franklin men found it swimming in the river near the Harrison home. They pulled the obviously tame critter from the stream and returned it to its youthful owner.

"Carlo and Steve" are changed men

Every New Year's "Carlo & Steve" make a list of Resolutions as long as their arm. They're changed men this year. Imagine! Only one resolution!

The soap companies are promising sudsier suds; the orange growers are promising juicier juice... so "Carlo & Steve" promise they'll be grocier grocier.

Which means they'll wear out more shoe leather in 1954 to chase down bigger and better values for you. Here's a sample of what a grocier grocier can do.
